

Permaculture in Kenya

Take Your Permaculture Design Certification Course in Kenya
Nyumbani Village - December 5-18 2011

Learn how to design for stability, resilience, and abundance at villages in Kenya that are dedicated to sustainability.

Nyumbani Village, in the Kitui District 2-hours from Nairobi, is home to hundreds of elders and children who were orphaned by family members who have died of HIV/AIDS.

Badilisha EcoVillage, on Rusinga Island in Lake Victoria, operates orphan feeding programs, local scholarship funds, women empowerment and family adoption programs.

These courses will be facilitated by Warren Brush, the co-founder of Quail Springs Permaculture Farm and True Nature Design with other local teachers.

Cost: $950*

Includes meals, camping and instruction

Does not include transportation.

Discounts and scholarships available for Africa-based participants.

An International Learning Journey

- Earn your Permaculture Design Certification
- Gain hands-on skills in sustainable systems design and application in a village setting
- Water harvesting, storage, and conservation strategies that drought proof landscapes
- Local food security and waste cycling
- Dryland agriculture strategies
- Appropriate technology, ecological building, energy efficiency, food forestry, and much more...

www.quailsprings.org
permaculturedesign.us

Contact: elinlovisa@gmail.com